A NEW APPROACH TO CLASSIC DESIGN

The drinkware collection 1913 combines modern shapes with traditional craftsmanship. Its creator, the Art Director of Moser, Jan Plecháč, drew inspiration from a 110-year-old set at our glassworks, however, he imprinted on it a distinctly contemporary form.

A MODERN DRINKWARE COLLECTION TOUCHED BY HISTORY

We produce the decanter and water, whiskey, and long drink glasses using lead-free crystal and the traditional round cut technique. This affords every piece of the collection its striking vertical lines, with a golden letter “M” adorning the bottom. The design style of Viennese Modernism lends the 1913 drinkware set its original, timeless appearance.

RARE OCCASIONS

Light, elegant, and never-aging.
The drinkware set 1913 is meant for rare occasions, joyous moments with loved ones, but also time
reserved just for you.

JAN PLECHÁČ

The designer and current Art Director of Moser studied architecture at the Academy of Arts, Architecture and Design in Prague. He's won several international and domestic awards for his work and signed his name under world-class projects.

“The drinkware set 1913 was inspired by an older, yet genuinely timeless, collection that was made over 100 years ago in the Moser glassworks. We took it out of the archive and played with the proportions and design in order to propel it into the next millennium. The collection breaks through the barrier between heavy glasses meant for hard liqueurs and their lighter counterparts intended for soft drinks. I believe it will delight future generations for an additional 110 years.”
